

Parramatta Eels go Modern

Blue & yellow makes green, after all. Parramatta Eels are on the front line to revolutionise renewable energy in Australia by supporting Modern Solar. We love our league, & we're playing front row to see Australia go solar.

Modern Solar is engaging with a number of clubs & other sporting teams across the country to raise awareness of the urgent need to switch to renewable energy. With solar credits, renewable energy certificates & feed-in tariffs to take advantage of, this is a very advantageous time to go solar.

Nathan Cayless & Fuifui Moimoi visit the Modern Office in Bella Vista.

The Modern Group is Australia's largest home improvement company, & the Modern Solar division has rapidly grown to be a market leader in Australian renewable energy for the home.

Solar power allows homeowners with integrated systems to export their power to the grid & be credited by the energy retailers. As the cost of electricity rises & the peak point of oil production draws closer, the cost of virtually everything you can buy will continue to rise. Switching to renewable energy will help you to keep your family's energy requirements protected & save dollars for you to spend on things you want & not just things you need - like tickets to the big game!

Drop Modern a line on 13 11 78 or enquire online at www.modernsolar.com.au to reduce your carbon footprint & support your team. See you at the game!
